And many, many more...

The reason first time buyers come to us is primarily our superb speakers & agenda. But the extra value we deliver is market-leading interactivity. This helps you get the most from the speakers & excellent delegates that this event always attracts.

Roundtables: Anyone can sit you around a table – this is not unique. But over 10 years we have developed the techniques to make ours the most effective networking & learning you can get from a conference.

Interactive Technology: We want you to go away from this event with a toolkit full of great practical ideas you can use. We use technology to capture all of the key learning from the event and summarise this into a document you get to take away with you.

“The technology used at Osney Media’s Sept 07 Engagement Event brought a new dimension to an already excellent event. It took the level of interactivity to a whole new level and made for an incredibly rich event. And the document generated by the technology is a great tool, dense with good practical information, and would be worth the fee just by itself.”

Howard Honick, Senior Consultant, Alexander Hughes (Holland)

At Osney Media we are proud of our market-leading interactivity. But we know the prime reason you come to a conference is to hear the speakers. And we always get you the best speakers, talking on cutting edge topics in an informative and inspiring way. How do we manage to do this event after event?

1. Our reputation for getting great delegates makes it easier to recruit speakers – who wants to speak to an audience of 30?
2. We work with our speakers prior to the event to help them do the best possible presentation – this adds value to them
3. The interactivity at our events mean that the speakers get real value – one described this akin to getting free consulting from his peers
4. We are able to demand higher quality standards (e.g. not just using a tired old talk that’s been heard before) because they actually want to be at our events

FROM EMPLOYEE ENGAGEMENT TO DELEGATE ENGAGEMENT

How often do you go to conferences where you feel that you have been engaged?

Do you feel that most conferences are events you attend or events that you participate in?

The testimonials that we get show that the community of people who have attended our Internal Branding and Employee Engagement event believe that we do things in a different and better way. We are the market leaders in, and have built our brand on, delivering interactive, participative events.

What do we do differently?

Our seating is in roundtable format and we build significant dialogue time into the agenda. This has two direct results that improve what you get from our events:

- The number of people you have dialogue with is much higher than other events.
- The quality of discussion is much higher. The result is that participants in our conferences tend to still be in touch with the network they have created much longer after the event than you would normally expect.
- Vast improvement in practical hands-on learning that you can directly apply to your work: real learning involves dialogue not just listening, and our reputation is built in being market-leaders in this.

We use interactive technology at the tables to feedback to the chair. Benefits:-

- You can ask questions to the speaker (via the technology) during the talk without interrupting. If these questions don't get answered during the talk the speaker will type up the answer to the question after the event. You get your personal questions answered.
- We can do surveys & polls, and capture the information in graph form that you can use back in the office At the last event we produced a 60 page document as a result of the information captured on this technology. Many people feel that this document is so packed with useful information that it alone would justify the event price. See the website for more details

We create a forum in which people feel safe to tell it as it really is. Benefits:-

- You don't just get the 'didn't we do it well' stories, you get to see what really happened including the mistakes and lessons learnt.
- The barriers between people are broken down. Therefore the quality of interaction is deeper and truer, bringing great benefits for learning and network development

We are passionate & we take pride in making sure you get every last drop of value from the event

- It is difficult to quantify this, but it's something you will appreciate. Whether it is helping to introduce you to somebody you particularly want to meet, finding a plug to charge your mobile phone, or nipping out to get you that bar of chocolate that you have to have to get you through the afternoon, we are there to help

But don't take our word for it. See what people attending our event say about us on the back page of this brochure.

7th and 8th February 2008, One Whitehall Place, London

Pre-conference half day workshop

Engaging people in large organisations

Wednesday 6th February, 13.00 – 16.30

It's quite often a daunting proposition for more senior people in HR and communications in large corporates: How on earth do I address this across an enormous complex beast like our organisation?

- Dealing with thinly spread populations
- Working with the needs of diverse audiences
- Making sense of engagement with large numbers
- Dealing with complex business structures

Dr Adrian Britten, Founder of Britten People, and former Head of Colleague Engagement at the Co-operative Group will, using his extensive experience of delivering this across the Co-operative Group's 13 businesses comprising 85,000 staff and 4500 locations, guide you through these issues and coach you to be able to get to grips with, and deliver, these complex issues in your own workplace. To create outstanding performance and differentiate themselves in the marketplace, businesses must harness the efforts and goodwill of their people. This is where Adrian delivers success. He is the founder of Britten People, a niche consultancy specialising in driving employee engagement, delivering brand alignment and embedding change to ensure benefit realisation.

"What a refreshing change. A conference company that really believes in innovation! This is definitely the best event I have attended and is a must for anyone in the process of rolling out internal branding"

Di Macdonald, former Director of Culture, Learning and Development, 3

Internal Branding and Employee Engagement 2008

7th and 8th February 2008, One Whitehall Place, London

Dear Colleague,

Employer branding, internal marketing and employee engagement have seen an enormous growth in interest over recent years as companies have woken up to the fact that competitive differentiation increasingly relies on the quality and commitment of the talent an organisation is able to deploy.

In turn, there are many new innovations in practice emerging in this area, which events like Osney Media's Internal Branding and Engagement Forum serve to bring to the wider attention of interested parties. Many of the key insights from my book 'The Employer Brand' came from the first two Osney Internal Branding events back in 2004 / 05, and every subsequent event has brought forward many new and exciting practices which can increase the effectiveness of those responsible for HR, marketing, internal communications and talent management.

One of the most refreshing characteristics of this Forum is the time devoted to round-table discussion. Given the high quality of delegates this event has continued to attract, you will undoubtedly find you learn as much from discussing the everyday challenges of branding and engagement with the people around you as you will from the case study presentations.

Following on from the two "sell-out" Forums in 2007, the line up of speakers for February 2008 looks better than ever, and I very much hope you can join us for what promises to be a highly stimulating and informative couple of days.

Yours sincerely,

Richard Mosley

Chairman of the Internal Branding and Employee Engagement Forum, author of 'The Employer Brand' and Managing Director of People in Business.

We are not just saying this event is very good. We make a simple but bold claim: this event is unquestionably the best event in Europe on Internal Branding & Employee Engagement. But we are biased. Therefore the most important thing is what the people who have been attending our events over the past few years have to say about it. And please compare these comments with comments made about the other events you might consider going on – we are confident that it will give you a fair indication of how far ahead of the competition we are.

What they said about Internal Branding & Employee Engagement Sept 07

At the end of the first day I didn't want to come back for day 2. Why? I was so inspired and energised, and had got so much nitty-gritty practical stuff that I just wanted to race back to the office, roll my sleeves up and get on with it. The event was truly superb and if you are serious about this stuff then I would say you would be mad to go to any event other than Osney Media's."

Ryan Williams Employer Brand Manager, The Co-operative Group

"I came to the event hoping to get best practice. I got more than that: The event inspired me because the people there (presenters and delegates) were brilliant, and I came away with a huge amount of practical information that will make a big difference to how we will work now."

Gregory Birth, Communications, BSI Switzerland

"This event is very special. You have created a forum where people are prepared to tell their story, and tell it from the heart in a words 'n' all manner rather than having a PowerPoint overload. This means that you've actually really engaged with the audience. I brought my MD and he has got something extraordinary out of it. Truly impressive!"

Stuart Brown, Head of Business Development, Armstrong Watson

"I have been to quite a few conferences, and while they have some great speakers there are very few opportunities to engage with other delegates. Osney Media on the other hand do this brilliantly (appropriately for an event on engagement!). This is partly the roundtables, partly the interactive technology, partly the time devoted to discussion, partly the facilitation, and partly the way they create a buzzy environment. This means that I've come away with a lot of really valuable and practical ideas."

Ian Wilder, HR Adviser, Ministry of Defence

The conference has greatly exceeded my expectations because it has helped my identify the 'low hanging fruits' that I can act on straight away when I get back and which would make a real difference. I was surprised by how effective the event was at helping me understand in real practical terms what I could learn from the experiences other people had had."

Roopa Rao Nadkarni, Project – Lead, Employer Branding, IBM INDIA

"Compared to other events like this that I go to I would say that Osney Media's event stands out from the crowd. The quality of speakers and presentations is outstanding; this leads to a fantastic cross section of delegates from various backgrounds. I'm a big fan."

Leslie Allman, Director, Allman Communications

What they said about the earlier Internal Branding & Employee Engagement Events

"The best Employee Engagement event I've been to. The following week I was sharing best practice techniques I had learnt at the event with my colleagues. Since the forum I have been in contact with and have meetings arranged with some of the speakers and delegates to learn from each other further. Well worth the two days out of the office."

Susan Myers, Communications Specialist, Smith and Nephew

"The quality of speakers and topics was exceptional – highly relevant practitioner experience. Excellent value for money."

Darren Hockley, Managing Director, DeltaNet

"The only event that offers true interaction where attendees leave having learnt from a series of excellent case studies."

Martin Tracey, Head of International People Development, Time Warner

"The best event I have attended. A very well devised and delivered event with a diverse range of interesting speakers."

John Parker, Director, IPB Academy

If you are still not convinced, and want to speak to a previous delegate in person just to make sure (because after all conferences brochures are notorious for being full of hyperbole), please don't hesitate to contact us.

We have so many people who have been inspired and delighted by attending that there will definitely be a previous delegate from your industry that you can speak to.
